

Costs for Publishing an Article

April 19, 2017

Based on operating costs in 2014, the journal department of the IJCU worked out a statistic report to reflect the costs for publishing an article in IJCU Journals:

Direct costs related to single articles:

Item	Amount	Notes
Thomson Reuters	> 295 USD/year	We indexed all papers in Thomson Reuters by Clarivate Analytic
Labor costs	> 50.00 USD/article	This covers author services, peer-review, editing, publishing, and other direct costs. It is an average across all submissions.
Paypal fee	3.50 USD/transaction	Most transactions are processed by Paypal.
Crosscheck/ iThenticate	0.75 USD/article	We enjoy a group discount price.
DOI fee	1.00 USD/DOI name	We assign a DOI name to each article.
CrossRef Membership	275 USD/year	We got a special service becomes a member
Print & Delivery	0.00 USD/article	We publish online only, so there are no printing or mailing fees.
Maintenance fee	5.00 USD/article/year	This reflects the approximate amount, including labor costs, online hosting, and backup fees, needed for website maintenance. We expect this amount to decrease in the future.

Indirect costs that cannot be allocated to single articles and so are applied using an average:

- Office rent
- Office equipment
- Office expenses
- Payroll for administrative staff
- Accounting and legal fees
- Bank charges
- Trademark fees
- Marketing and advertisement
- Technical support
- Website hosting, design, and backup: we employ servers in three locations, for security and safe backup.

Keep Costs Low

The executives and staffs always travel economy class for business trips. We do not rent a premium office, and we do not sponsor luxury conferences or festival parties. Our goal is to serve journal publishing and to support research as frugally as possible, as we are committed to the academic community. We struggle to retain the lowest operation costs in the industry. Any recommendations for reducing costs are most welcome.
